

I have been a listener of XM radio for some time now and choose to subscribe to thier service because of the wide variety of music and information they offer if XM was to disappear tommorrow I for one would still not turn to the radio for traffic weather or just plain entertainment because the quality just isnt there all stations play the same generic music there is little variety to be foundand you have to suffer through what they do play to get at the information traffic weather or otherwise when (they) decide to give it to you
